Some words about me

I worked for many years as a self-employed professional, which taught me responsibility and organization. After moving to France, I transitioned to the restaurant industry, where my attention to detail and commitment quickly earned me the position of manager.

Now, after three years of adapting to a new language and culture, I'm pursuing my long-time passion: programming. In my free time, I enjoy working on tech projects with Arduino, Python, and web development tools, or going for bike rides to switch things up!
